

Dallas Morgan CJF and Jessica Morgan DVM

Dallas and Jessica Morgan own Morgan Equine Veterinary and Farrier Hospital in the finger lakes region of upstate New York. Their practice is dedicated to lameness diagnostics, therapeutics and Farriery of performance horses. Through their 24 years together they have developed a systematic approach to treating lameness cases.

Dallas Morgan CJF, a native Australian, is a full time performance horse Farrier. In addition to teaching and lecturing about Farriery, he has enjoyed competing and judging around the world. His lectures are practical, technical and experience based.

In 1989, Dallas ventured to the United States from Australia to attend a formal horseshoeing program. Currently, he holds Certified Journeyman Farrier status with the American Farriers Association and is recognized by the Worshipful Company of Farriers in England.

In 1993 he became attending Farrier at Kansas State University where for six years he worked extensively with hospitalized therapeutic cases as well as maintained a remedial horseshoeing business. In 1997 he competed in England and qualified for the royal show. Upon returning to the USA, he moved to California where he primarily shod jumpers and dressage horses.

As a member of the American Farriers Team in 2000, he competed extensively through out the US, Canada and England. He was World Championship Blacksmiths (WCB) Overall High Point and Open Division winner at Flagstaff AZ.

Dallas is an American Farriers Association Certified Tester and Pre-Certification Clinician as well as a Delta-Mustad Hoofcare sponsored clinician and consultant. Delta-Mustad is the primary provider of hoof care tools, shoes and nails globally and it is an honor to represent their company because they support education in the Farrier Industry.

Jessica Morgan DVM, a Kansas State University CVM graduate, is a private Equine Practitioner focused on lameness diagnostics; particularly musculoskeletal ultrasound and increasingly MRI.

At 13 she was trimming her own ponies. Horseshoeing school in 1991 was a logical step for an equine practitioner in the making. In 1997 an internship in Equine Medicine and Surgery at a private equine practice led her to Southern California. She remained in California, operating a solo equine ambulatory equine practice for six years. In 2003 Dallas and Jessica built Morgan Equine Veterinary & Farrier Hospital in the finger lakes region of New York.

Her professional veterinary continuing education efforts have led to completing specialty veterinary acupuncture, chiropractic and dentistry courses, all of which have contributed to proficiency in evaluating and treating the whole horse. Dr. Morgan is an ISELP certified member in Equine Locomotor Pathology.

Jessica is a life long multidisciplinary equestrian competitor. Currently, she enjoys the mental challenge of USDF shows and the athletic complexity of USEA horse trials. She has a talented and opinionated Westphalian mare who is moving through the levels nicely in both organizations.

She believes bridging the knowledge and technology gap between Veterinarians and Farriers will result in unparalleled service and commitment to the horse. Her main objective is to help Veterinarians make meaningful, practical and successful farriery based treatment recommendations and to help Farriers understand anatomy, diagnostic imaging and how it applies to them.
